LOOK FOR BREED SPECIFIC FOODS

Many people don't realise that the needs of dogs and cats can differ depending on their breed, size or age. It is important to consider breed when choosing your pet's food.

At Petbarn, we're here to help you find the best food to support your pet's needs.

Why feed your pet a diet specific to their breed?

- From Labradors to Dachshunds, British Shorthairs to Maine Coons, different breeds are prone to different aches and ailments. Feeding your pet breed-specific foods ensures your pet will receive the nutrients best suited to them
- Large breeds are more prone to heart, and joint issues, so feeding them a diet that is specific to their breed will help support optimal heart health and keep joints healthy and mobile
- Smaller breeds are more prone to dental health and urinary tract concerns, so feeding your small pet a diet specific to them can help manage oral care and help maintain urinary tract health

How to find the right food for your dog or cat

STEP ONE: Look at life stage i.e. Puppy / Kitten, Adult and Senior

STEP TWO: Look for breed specific foods as some brands will offer these for your pet. You can also look for foods suitable to your pet's size i.e. Toy, Small, Medium, Large and Giant.

STEP THREE: Consider if your pet has any additional needs i.e. oral care, weight management concerns

How to ensure you're feeding the right food for your pet:

Size Descriptor	Weight Guide	Key Benefits of these foods
Toy & Small Breed	Up to 10kg	Encourages oral and dental health
Medium	10-25kg	Promotes optimal skin and coat health and supports digestive function etc
Large	25-50kg	Glucosamine and Chondroitin helps maintain healthy joints and fibre blends and prebiotics can boost the levels of gut bacteria for optimal digestion
Giant	>50kg	Giant breeds require a very specific diet due to their extended growth phase and requirement for joint support through life
